

Dear Roble Gamers,

I hope you've realized that Dr. Simons and his group of dangerous scientists are not to be trusted and must be stopped at all costs. We hope that you'll help us put an end to their conspiracy and clear NanoPHarm's name. To that end, we're providing you with a communication we intercepted just last week between Dr. Simons and Dr. Anderson. To outward appearances, it seemed that Dr. Anderson's daughter forgot her homework at school, and Dr. Simons courteously dropped off a copy at Anderson's house after work. However, our surveillance microphones around Anderson's house picked up this bizarre statement by Dr. Simons: "Lack job, find gem." We are certain that these are the words spoken, as he repeated the exact phrase to Dr. Anderson several times before departing. We need you to figure out their meaning. Help us now, brilliant Stanford students, and your service will not go unrewarded.

Sincerely,

NanoPHarm Internal Affairs
